

0:06 and 3:06

Arizona Highways Magazine February 1974

0:20 and 12:36

Wupatki National Monument

National Park Service
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

Home on the Rim

A large Hisatsinom community once thrived in this area. Evidence of these Hopi ancestors remains in the homes and farmland scattered across the landscape for several miles in all directions.

Here you can see carefully stacked slabs of red sandstone, pale limestone, and black basalt still standing tall after nine centuries. Once topped by insulating roofs of brush and mud supported by heavy wooden beams, these homes overlooked farmland on the canyon floor below.

Notice the difference between naturally broken rock along the canyon cliffs and remnant pueblo walls.

Wupatki National Monument interpretive signage

0:28 and 7:14

Small pitcher, Museum of Northern Arizona
Copper bells, Arizona Origins Facebook page

0:58

Based on pit house replica at Steam Pump Ranch, Oro Valley, Arizona combined with local Flagstaff area natural environment

5:21

Recolored historic photo of Native American corn field near Tuba City, Arizona

5:29

Animated historic photo, AI decided to add another girl, go figure

5:37

Colored and enlarged historic photo

6:06

Museum of Northern Arizona

7:20

The Hohokam Desert Farmers & Craftsmen, Emil Haury, 1976, page 182

7:54

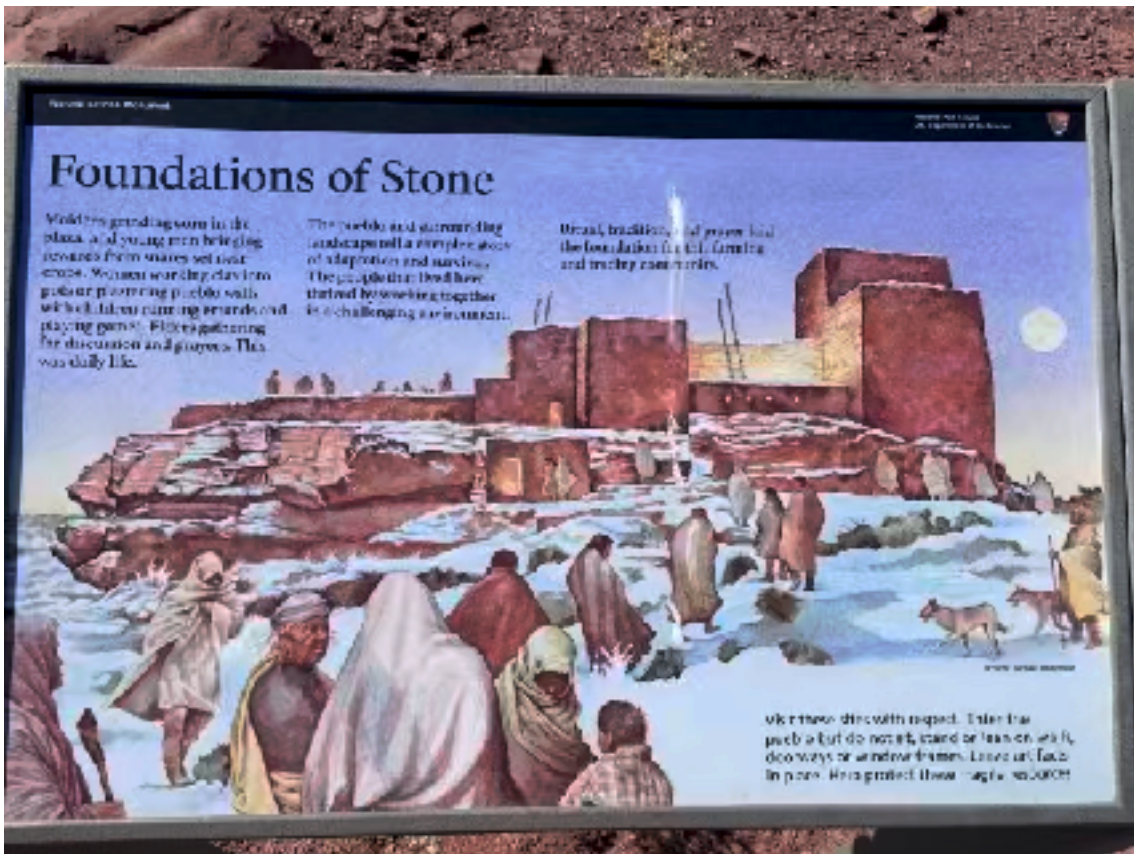

Wupatki National Monument interpretive signage

9:10

Casa Grande National Monument

9:25

Wupatki National Monument interpretive signage

12:12

Rocks below Wukoki Pueblo combined with pot at the Museum of Northern Arizona

Arizona State Museum, the AI didn't get the shape or texture just right but it was still in the spectrum of real pots so I just left it.

14:18

Expanded and enlarged this small old photo

14:28

Enlarged and expanded this small old photo

15:53

Expanded and added smoke to this photo from Arizona Highways February 1974

15:58

Expanded and re-lit this photo from Arizona Highways February 1974

Thumbnail

This is a dramatization to show that the pueblos are very close to the volcano but in fact you cannot see Sunset Crater from this vantage point.